PEOPLE SUFFERING FROM OR SUFFERED FROM ANY MAJOR ILLNESS OFTEN FACE CHALLENGES IN GETTING MARRIED

In our society, marrying a 'patient' is always a taboo. Parents don't allow their child to marry some body who is suffering from or has suffered from any critical disease such as cancer, kidney failure, epilepsy, diabetes or any other disease which has a chronic impact on human lives.

Suhani (name changed) is an engineer by profession and works for a reputed corporate in Mumbai, 2 years back she suffered from kidney failure and her mother gave her one kidney and she underwent transplant. Now she is absolutely fit and fine but dependent of some medications to help her stay normal. She's 30 years old, never married and looking for a match for quiet some time but no one wants to marry her thinking she might carry a financial burden to the one who marries her. In few cases, educated young generation do agree to marry someone with pre existing healthcare complications but their parents don't allow their children marry a Medically ill individual and its justified as well to a large extent. I do see lot many patients who are finding it really difficult to get a life partner even after getting the successful treatment, we needed some kind of platform to assist such patients, says well known Nephrologist from Mumbai, Dr. Hemal Shah.

We, at Mickey Amogh foundation took this challenge seriously and thought of an alternative to this problem and that is, what if both the parties have similar kind of background? i.e. they had faced or facing a health related issue. Recently, we have created a platform called Divine Relations which is available on website and android app. Its simple and free for all. We are sure, this platform will change the life of many patients who are in need, concludes Vivek Sharma, trustee of Mickey – Amogh Foundation.
